

FESTA DEL CINEMA DI ROMA

Some intensive days await you at this year's 15th edition of Festa del Cinema, Rome's annual famed film festival hosted at Auditorium Parco della Musica. The building complex – designed by Italian Architect Renzo Piano – will host screenings, exhibitions, celebrity appearances, debates, conferences and panels, while the 1,300 square meters of avenue leading to the Cavea becomes one of the largest red carpets in the world. Twenty-four films make up the festival's official selection. Pete Docter's Soul

October 15 - 25
Auditorium Parco della Musica
Viale Pietro de Coubertin, 30
Entry fee: €6-25

website/App | romacinemafest.it is the opening film – the story about a middle school music teacher who has the opportunity to play at the best jazz venue in the city. Not to mention Dominic Cooke's internationally acclaimed Ironbark, the story of a British businessman who finds himself caught up in one of the largest international conflicts in history. A terrific cast is in store: Benedict Cumberbatch, Merab Ninidze, Rachel Brosnahan and Jessie Buckley.

Also in this year's lineup are some newly restored masterpieces of Italian cinema including Paolo and Vittorio Taviani's Padre Padrone and Pietro Germi's In Nome della Legge.

For all of you waiting to hear about this year's 14 Close Encounters series, buckle up, as some prominent names in the film industry will be involved. From director Steve McQueen who's going to present Small Axe, a series of 5 films set in London in between the '60s and '70s; to American director, screenwriter, animator and film producer Pete Docter, who has enchanted the public with animation jewels such as Up, Monsters & Co. and Inside Out. But that's not it, other personalities that aren't linked to the film industry will also be present: from Radiohead's lead singer Thom York to Francesco Totti whose film Mi chiamo Francesco Totti directed by Alex Infascelli will premiere at the Festival.

While the retrospective, curated by Mario Sesti, will be dedicated to the Indian film director Satyajit Ray, considered one of the greatest filmmakers in the history of cinema.

As usual, the festival will take place in various locations in Rome. After last year's success the two formers: "Duel" and "Fedeltà/Tradimenti" will make a comeback. In "Duel" two well-known personalities will compare divergent opinions on themes related to cinema, while in "Fedeltà/Tradimenti" acclaimed Italian and international screenwriters will comment on the cinematographic transposition of famous literary works.

After last year's screwball comedies, this year's edition of "Films of our Lives" will be about science fiction. Before each screening, viewers will be able to watch short clips of the most famous science fiction films. Seven films are in store, including Star Wars: Episode Iv - A New Hope and Close Encounters Of The Third Kind.

Other big news is the debut of the new virtual room where you can follow part of the program on demand: the Digital RFF15 platform, which will be online starting from October 12th. Check out the whole program by visiting the Festival's official website.

The Eternal City is hosting its fifth edition of "RAW – Rome Art Week" – an artistic initiative dedicated entirely to contemporary art – where more than 280 artists, 45 curators, 130 galleries and institutions will be participating.

For one week, all participants will organise events including openings, guided tours, lectures, conferences, performances and more, to present and promote their "vision" of contemporary art. Artists will open the doors of their ateliers and work spaces to visitors to showcase their research and, in some cases, engage them in creative work. Rome Art Week has also invited critics and authoritative operators from the contemporary art industry to give their vision of the state of contemporary art in Rome.

NEWS FROM

Museo nazionale
delle arti del XXI secolo

MAXXI, the National Museum of 21st Century Arts, hosts thought-provoking and colorful exhibitions from the modern art world. Designed by controversial architect Zaha Hadid, MAXXI is an unconventional space both inside and out. This striking building is composed of giant intersecting concrete segments that seem severe from the outside, but inside create flowing pathways that gently transport the visitor through this modern, open-plan space.

THE NOT-TO-MISS EXHIBITIONS THIS MONTH

MAXXI

Via Guido Reni, 4/a
Tue-Fri, Sun: 11am-7pm, Sat: 11am-10pm
Entry Fee: €9-12
maxxi.art

MAXXI is always an eye and mind-opening experience every person must experience. Founded in 1998 by the Ministry for Cultural Heritage and Activities, the museum offers a panoramic overview of contemporary art through its permanent Collection, art and architecture exhibitions, workshops, conferences and educational projects. This month, the big news is the enrichment of the permanent Collection with artworks by nine Italian masters and the stunning photographic exhibition by Giovanni Gastel.

THE NOT-TO-MISS EXHIBITIONS THIS MONTH AT MAXXI

Giovanni Gastel. The People I Like

Till November 22, 2020

Entry Fee: €10 - €12 (Gastel + MAXXI)

Admire Giovanni Gastel's superb photography exhibition, 'The People I Like' on display till November 22nd. Gastel has captured over 200 figures in elegant shots and displayed the essence of human emotions and identity in just a few camera clicks, in a few fleeting moments. These "celebrities" are captured as transient and as natural as strangers on the metro. All sense of career or status is lost, instead we are immersed in their emotions. For instance, we notice Barack Obama in a single instant, laughing, his face creased with sheer joy. Or Toni Thorimbert's sharp eyes scorching the camera lens. Appreciate the contrasting photographic techniques, some portraits in black in white, others bursting with colour, some hiding behind messy hair or hats. Others are up close, each eyelash and wrinkle depicted in the finest clarity.

SENZAMARGINE. Passages In Italian Art At The Turn Of The Millennium

Till October 11, 2021

Free entry Tue – Thur/every third Friday of the month till 10pm

Carla Accardi, Luciano Fabro, Luigi Ghirri, Yervant Gianikian and Angela Ricci Lucchi, Paolo Icaro, Jannis Kounellis, Anna Maria Maiolino, Claudio Parmiggiani and Mario Schifano—these nine masters of Italian contemporary art are the protagonists of the new tribute exhibition Senzamargine. Set in a sequence of immersive environments that enhance their revolutionary charge, strength and monumentality, as well as their relationship with space, the chosen works created by Italian masters, or active in Italy, are often considered to be on the margins of the most well known movements. Over the years these artists have been able to maintain independent and original research, such as to be considered a reference point for the artists of subsequent generations. This new large display of artworks enriches MAXXI's Collection project on the occasion of the Museum's tenth anniversary.

BANKSY A VISUAL PROTEST

Till April 11

Chiostro del Bramante

Via Arco della Pace, 5 (Centro Storico)

Mon – Fri 10am–8pm; Sat – Sun 10am – 9pm

Entry fee €13 – 18

chiostrodelbramante.it

British street artist and superstar Banksy has returned to Rome with an exhibition at Chiostro del Bramante displaying 90 of the artist's works. Banksy is a contradiction of fame and mystery, with anonymity at the core of his identity he is one of the most influential characters of the art world. Graffiti is illegal so secrecy is a defence against the police, but it also makes space to confront his controversial themes of war, politics and decaying society without his personality distracting or diluting the discussion.

The exhibition is expansive, curated over two floors in a labyrinth of grey rooms which evoke the meandering mess of city streets. The historic architecture of Bramante's Cloister compliments Banksy's urban street art with the notion that all art is contemporary, graffiti as an evolution of Renaissance frescoes. Most of the work on display has come from private collectors, so it is a rare moment to see so much of Banksy's art in one place.

From "Love is in the Air" and "Girl with Balloon"; from "Queen Vic" to "Napalm", from "Toxic Mary" to "HMY", and even prints made for Barely Legal. The exhibition itinerary also includes more than 20 projects for album and book covers, in a time span that ranges from 2001 to 2017. Banksy is a genius of comedy who incites change and provokes rebellion. Actress Angela Rafanelli narrates their audio guide on the gallery app to ensure you don't miss a thing.
